Snow kept us from worshipping together in person on Sunday. The wind whipped around and through cracks around my door. I was thankful for a warm apartment and a secure place to sleep and find shelter from the storms of the day. I was comfortable. Social media and the news described what was happening in the wider world. Soon I saw images of flooding in KY & storms in the South. I watched as images of the arctic air plunged much of North America into a frozen skating rink along roadways. Today images of my hometown in KY underwater filled my inbox. But I remained warm & comfortable & secure.

As we move through another week filled with weather, and grief both near and far, I ask you to consider how you will respond. Will it be the comfort of a warm home or church? God responds. God ask us to respond, as well.

Jane Stout, Outreach Chairperson and Elder
